Rogers Warns Arkansas Executive That If Attack Is Made on Character Life Will Pay Penalty.

FRIENDS PREVENT A FIGHT AT HIGGINSON

Attorney-General Is a Candidate for Congress and Governor for U. S. Senator and Political Feeling Is Bitter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 31.—A threat to kill Gov. Jeff Davis of Arkansas was made to his face at Higginson, Ark., this morning by Attorney-General Bob Rogers.

Most bitter relations exist between the two State officials, and the latest development in the large chapter of troubles between the two threatens to result seriously.

Gov. Davis, who is a candidate for the United States Senate, reached Higginson this morning, intending to arrive from there to Griffithville, 20 miles, where he was due to deliver an address.

Attorney-General Bob Rogers, who is a candidate for Congress, appeared in Higginson about the same time, to the surprise and alarm of Gov. Davis and his party. At the station Gen. Rogers stepped up to Gov. Davis and exclaimed: "If in your speech today you attack my private character in any way, as you have done in the past, I will kill you instantly."

Hot words followed, but friends prevented trouble on the spot. Desperate feelings have existed between Rogers and Davis since Rogers held up the mill appropriation bill and on another occasion slapped the Governor's private secretary in the face when the secretary was on an executive mission in Rogers' office.

SHOWERS TO COOL AIR OFF

Cooler weather is coming. Showers are going to bring it. The showers and the cooler weather will arrive at about the same time Friday.

The official forecast: "Fair tonight; showers and cooler Friday; southerly winds, becoming easterly."

A storm center moving from the Dakotas to the lake region has made it cooler there and in the upper Mississippi Valley. It is cooler on the Pacific Coast, Idaho, Nevada and Michigan. There was light frost Thursday morning in Baker City, Ore.

Fair weather prevails generally west of the Rockies, in the Southwest and in the central valleys, except the Upper Missouri Valley.

WAS THE BUGGY TOO WEAK

Vehicle, Smashed by Trolley Car, Leads to Hard Problem for Magistrate.

Just how much pressure ought a buggy be able to stand to prove that it is good buggy?

Should the buggy be impervious to attacks by street cars?

Justice of the Peace Brady of East St. Louis is expecting to render a decision on these questions within a few days.

The case is that of Peter Lansing against the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. and Mrs. A. Seago. 1202 Coloma avenue. He demands $100 damages for the loss of the buggy in question. Lansing says he was negotiating with Mrs. Seago for the sale of the buggy and that at her request he allowed her two days' trial of the vehicle. During one of those two days an engagement with a street car left the buggy in ruins.

Lansing says the company or Mrs. Seago should pay for the rig. They say not. Mr. Brady, J. P., will decide.

NO POLICE MACHINE,
SAYS GOV. FOLK

Department Will Be Used Only to Enforce the Law, He Declares.

BLONG NOT ASKED TO QUIT

Maroney Might Not Wish to Quit $3000 Position, Governor Suggests.

"The Police Department of St. Louis will never be used as a machine except for the enforcement of the law," said Gov. Folk to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday when asked concerning the report that he would appoint as a member of the Board of Police Commissioners a close personal and political friend who is anxious to lead the St. Louis Democracy.

"Friends of Andrew C. Maroney, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, have urged the Governor to appoint him a member of the board."

Mr. Maroney, with others, is now engaged in an attempt to reorganize the St. Louis Democracy.

"I hardly think," said Gov. Folk, "that Mr. Maroney would wish to give up a place that pays $3000 a year for one that would net him only $1000."

Concerning the report of pending resignation of Commissioner Blong and Hanlon, Gov. Folk declined to speak.

He was informed that Mr. Blong had denied that he had been requested to resign.

"That is true," said the Governor. "I have not asked for Mr. Blong's resignation nor indicated that I desired it."

"But will there be two new Police Commissioners?"

"That is something I do not wish to talk about at this time."

Gov. Folk arrived in St. Louis Thursday morning and will return to Jefferson City on the train leaving here at 10:30 p. m.

During the day he held conferences with several persons prominent in politics.

Police Commissioner Andrew F. Blong told a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday that Gov. Folk had not requested his resignation, nor even intimated that he wished him to retire.

"I have had no communication with Gov. Folk on the subject recently," Mr. Blong was asked.

"None whatever," he answered. "My relations with the Governor and other members of the board have been and are perfectly harmonious."

Gov. Folk's friends insist that, while Commissioner Richard Hanlon refuses to yield, Mr. Blong is ready to step down and out, whenever the Governor chooses his successor.

Mr. Blong was asked whether he would resign if requested to. "I will cross that bridge when I come to it," he replied.

"It is not pleasant to have rumors of this nature in circulation," he continued. "If the Governor has any plans for changes in the Police Board, I would like to be made aware of them."

"Have you objected to any of the Governor's policies, in respect to law enforcement?"

"I do not know what the Governor's policies are."

"Has there been any friction between you and President Brown or Mr. Fox, Gov. Folk's appointees on the board?"

"There has been no friction."

"Were you in accord with the Governor's appointees on the Sunday-closing law?"

"I offered no objection to the enforcement of that law. Why should I? I have tried to do my duty as a member of the board, but that is a hard thing to accomplish and avoid criticism."

"I care nothing about politics. My private interests are such that they require most of my time."

"How about Mr. Hanlon?"

"Well, an pretty certain Mr. Hanlon has not been asking me to give up his position. All we have learned about the Governor's plans is what we have read in the newspapers. If there are any changes to be made against me, I know nothing of them."

"It looks to me as though the whole matter was up to Gov. Folk."

MAN HURT AND HOUSE WRECKED
BY EXPLOSION

Entire Front of Building Is Knocked Down When Lighted Candle Is Carried Into Cellar—Women Escape.

OCCUPANT OF STORE
DODGED JUST IN TIME

Wall Within Few Inches of Sleeping Woman Fell, Scaring Her, but She Was Unhurt.

One man was so seriously burned that he may die and one man and two women narrowly escaped death in an explosion of gas which wrecked the two-story building at 1017-18 North Eighth street at 5 a. m. Thursday. Gus Lombardo of 1018 North Eighth street is at St. Mary's Hospital with his hands and face badly burned. He may lose the sight of one or both eyes.

The three women, Mrs. Barnett Radunskey, Mrs. Vincent Dotalo and Mrs. James Russo, were sleeping in their homes on the second floor.

The escape of the women was almost miraculous. Mrs. Russo and Dotalo occupied beds set close to the front wall and when the wall fell away they were within a few inches of the wall that fell, but were not even thrown out of bed.

Lombardo, inadvertently caused the explosion when he carried a lighted candle into the cellar to find some bananas which he had bought the day before from James Russo, who runs the store in the building. Lombardo had entered the store just after it was opened and borrowed a candle from Russo.

He went out the front door and around to the entrance to the cellar, which is in the alley on the south side of the building. He had taken but a few steps downward when there was a terrific explosion and Lombardo was thrown to the top of the stairs.

He was blinded by the flash, but turned instinctively toward his home across the street. Russo was standing in the door of his store and jumped back at the instant of the explosion. As he did so the entire front fell outward and he narrowly escaped the falling bricks.

When he could see through the cloud of smoke and dust he rushed upstairs expecting to find the women injured but they had escaped unhurt. He then hastened to Lombardo and helped him to his home.

Policemen Gahan and Loucks were a block away when the crash occurred. Loucks ran to a box to turn in a fire alarm while Gahan went to the assistance of the injured man who was wandering helplessly in the street. The fire department responded quickly but no blaze had followed the explosion.

Women's Narrow Escape.
Lombardo refused the aid of a City Sheriff and Mrs. Collins as he entered the kitchen of his home at 3066 Glasgow place Thursday.

"Why do you say good-bye?" she asked. "Where are you going?"

"I'm going to die," he said. He threw his arms around her neck and she assisted him into the next room, where he fell on a bed.

In answer to the anxious inquiries of his mother, sister and aunt, he said he had taken carbolic acid.

Mrs. Collins ran and summoned Dr. N. T. Thompson of 238 Cass avenue, but Sheridan died just as he reached the house.

When a policeman arrived at the house from the Dayton Street Police Station he was at first denied admittance, and when he was admitted, he was given no information about the suicide.

The relatives of Sheridan, who was 25 years old and unmarried, attribute his act to the loss of his position, a week ago, as foreman of a trucking company.

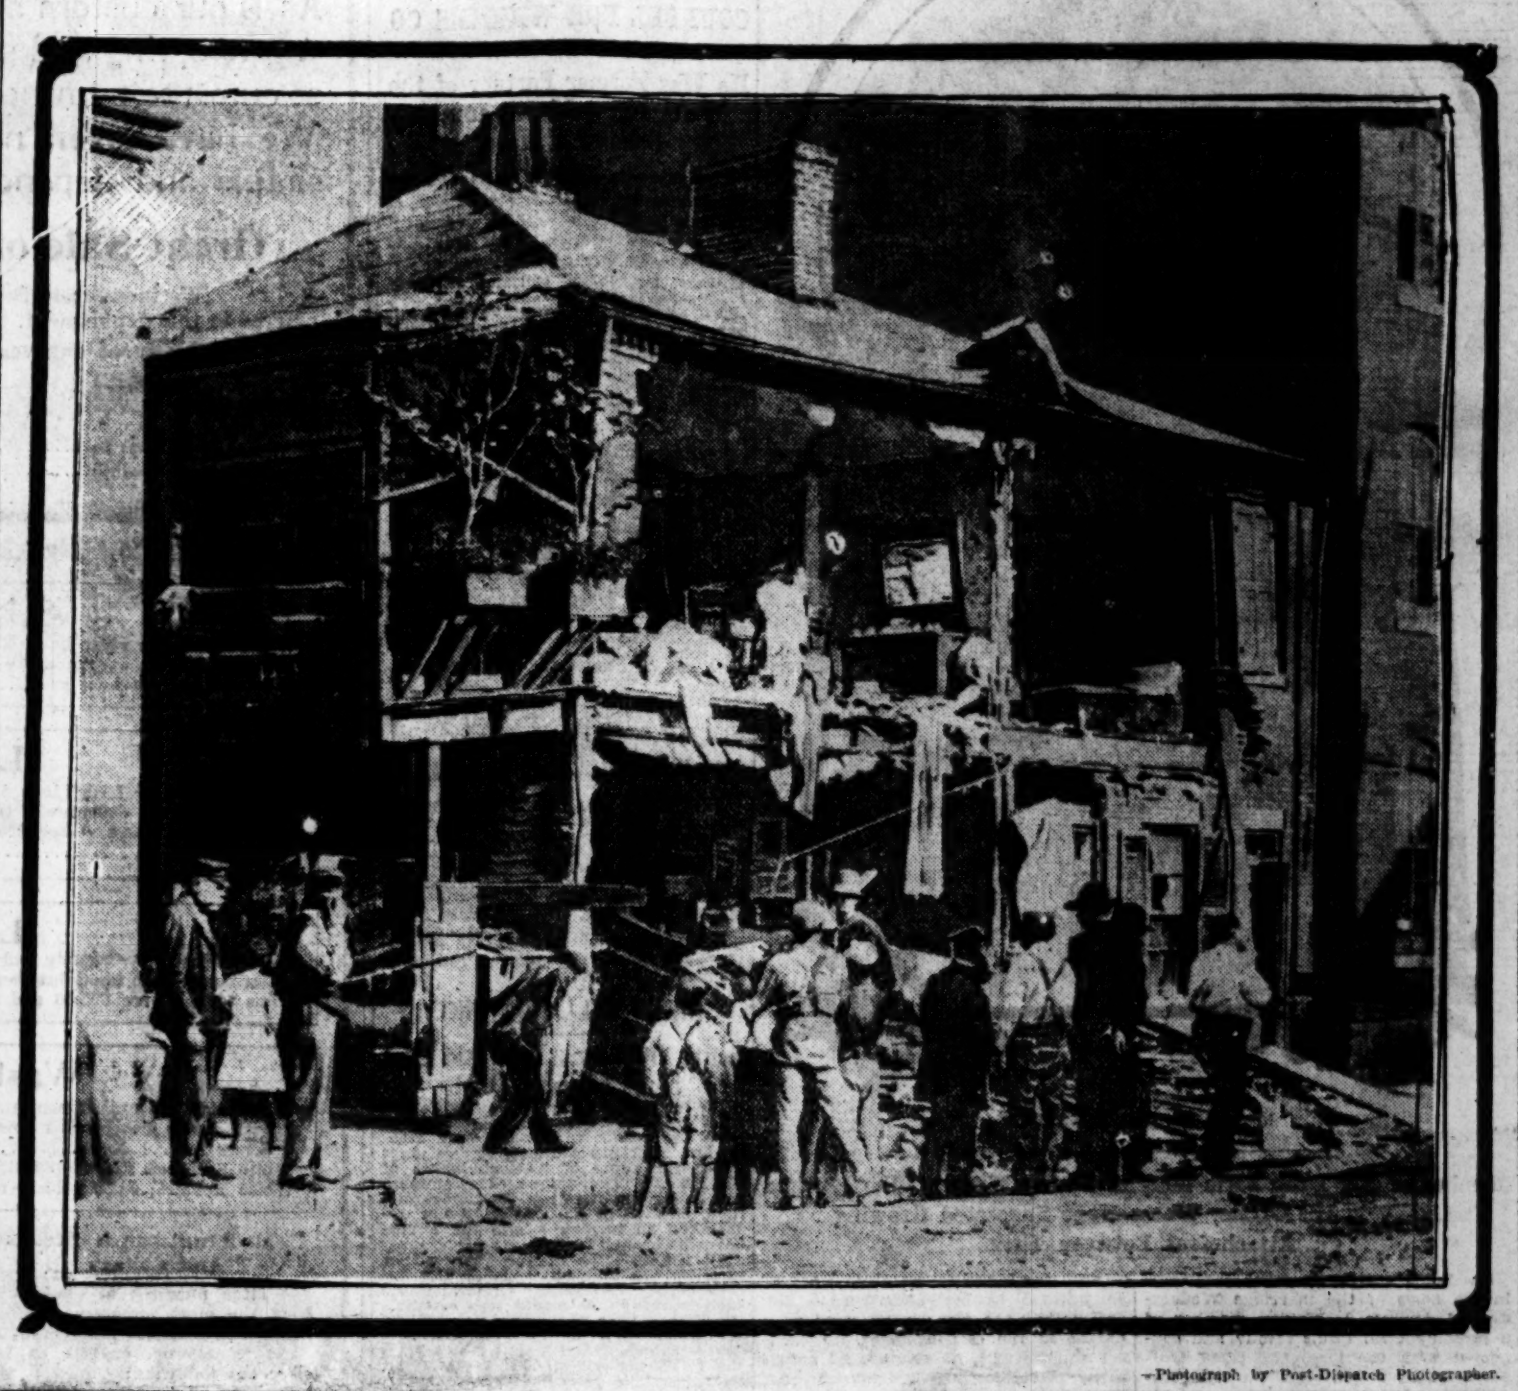

The carbolic acid is said to have been purchased at a drug store in the vicinity a short time before Sheridan swallowed it.

Mrs. Shields Left $81,951.
An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Margaret R. Shields shows personal property amounting to $81,951, divided as follows: Notes and interest, $454.85; stock in None Such Gold Mining Co., $22,500; cash, $250.70; goods and chattels, $9.

GIRL GRAPPLES WITH DOG WHICH ATTACKS
LAWN PARTY GUESTS

Marie Tiernan, Aged 17, of Webster Groves, Seizes Bull Terrier Which Bit Her Father—Killed With Ax After Bullets Fail.

Henry W. Tiernan of Webster Groves is rapidly recovering from the painful effects of a wound on the right arm, caused by the bite of a bull terrier owned by him which terrorized the guests at a lawn party Thursday, being killed only after having been pluckily captured and thrown into the kitchen by Miss Marie Tiernan, the 17-year-old niece of Mr. Tiernan, shot at five times and wounded once. The dog was finally dispatched with an ax.

The lawn party thus changed into a scene of panic was at the beautiful home of Mr. Tiernan on Big Bend road. The dog was Mr. Tiernan's 2-year-old, 25-pound bull terrier "Punch," which had been acting strangely for some time before the party.

The dog first attacked a confectioner's boy who brought the ice cream for the party. Mr. Tiernan, seizing the dog, was severely bitten in the right arm. The wound was cauterized by Dr. Horne Miles, and Mr. Tiernan then proceeded to welcome and entertain his friends as if nothing had happened.

He had locked the dog within the screened back porch. The animal broke through the screen about 10:30 o'clock and attacked Mr. Tiernan as the latter was opening an ice-cream freezer. Tiernan fled from the dog, which then rushed among the guests, snapping right and left and causing the wildest alarm.

Brave Girl to Rescue.
Miss Marie Tiernan, niece of the host, and a pupil in Sacred Heart convent, saw the dog as he rushed to and from among the guests, and fearlessly undertook his capture.

She confronted him in one of his rushes and, as he came within reach, grasped him by the throat and began choking him. The animal at first made vicious resistance, but was so held by the brave girl that he could not bite her, and at last choked until he was helpless. Then Miss Tiernan hurried with him into the kitchen, where was a padlocked chain.

Just as she reached the kitchen the dog renewed his struggle and freed himself from her grasp. He at once sprang at her, and Miss Tiernan dodged backed and slipped through the door behind her, a seething screen door. The dog made no attempt to follow her, retreating to a corner of the kitchen.

When it became known among those assembled on the lawn that there was nothing to prevent the dog's escape from the kitchen but the frail screen door the alarm reached its height. Frederick C. Tiernan, brother of the host, then determined to kill the animal.

He went to the kitchen window and fired five shots at the dog, one of which struck the animal, inflicting a slight wound in the left hind leg. This exhausted the supply of ammunition, and the dog more dangerous than ever, Frederick C. Tiernan, of 120 North 14th highway picked up an ax just outside the kitchen and, entering, advanced within reach of the dog and made a swinging blow at the animal's head. His aim was true and the dog was instantly killed, its head being crushed.

During the excitement many of Mr. Tiernan's guests hid behind flower bushes and trees and several of the men climbed to safe positions in the trees. The women were badly frightened, but whose pluck prevented the guests from being bitten by the dog, received grateful praise for her bravery.

C. Forrest Bookman Gets Letter Demanding $200 and Saying Otherwise Whole Family Will Be Killed.

HOME IS GUARDED BY POLICEMEN AT NIGHT

Young Man's Father Disappeared June 30, After Attending Meeting of Carpenters' Union.

The police are investigating the mystery of a threatening letter received Wednesday by C. Forrest Bookman, son of the missing George A. Bookman, who disappeared from his home at 404 Vernon avenue June 30, after attending a meeting of the Carpenters' Union, of which he was treasurer.

George A. Bookman's hat and watch chain and $10 in money were found on the ground near the kitchen door in the rear of the Bookman home, and spots of blood on the grand old sidewalk leading south to the suburban tracks indicated violence. Nothing has been heard of Bookman since his disappearance.

In the 9 o'clock Wednesday morning mail delivered at the establishment of the West Disinfectant Co., where he is employed as cashier, C. Forrest Bookman received a letter signed "W. S. K."

"The letter informed Bookman that if he would leave $200 in a tin can in the weeds on Iron street, between Minnesota and Pennsylvania avenues, by noon of that day, Wednesday, Aug. 30, his father would be restored to his family."

It closed with the threatening statement: "We are desperate, and if the money is not there we will kill the whole family."

Young Bookman at once turned this letter over to Chief of Detectives Desmond, who assigned Detective Casanova to the case.

Detectives on Watch.
Detective Casanova was on the place indicated in the letter as the spot where they were to be placed and found, as described in the letter, that it was overgrown with weeds. He placed a "dummy" tin can in the weeds, and then, with a policeman stationed within call, watched the spot until noon of Wednesday was passed.

No one put in an appearance to look for the tin can containing the $200 demanded in the letter and Detective Casanova finally terminated his vigil and returned to report to Chief Desmond.

Mrs. Bookman's wife of the missing man, became greatly agitated when her son told her of the receipt of the threatening letter. At her request young Bookman telephoned Captain McNamee of the Mounted Police for some protection of the home at night, and two policemen to this task.

Bookman Home Guarded.
The Bookman home was therefore closely watched throughout Wednesday night, but no suspicious characters were seen in the vicinity. It is likely that this watch will be maintained until the mystery of the letter has been thoroughly investigated.

About 9 o'clock Wednesday night Chief Desmond called young Bookman over the Arcade Fire Department telephone and had a long conversation with him. In the course of which Bookman was instructed to say nothing concerning the threatening letter, since the investigation had been continued, but without result.

At the time of George A. Bookman's disappearance the developments in the case of the missing man were such that his wife had been attacked by footpads at his own back door on returning from the meeting of his union, that he had been slain or seriously wounded, and that his body had then been buried away or destroyed by his assailants.

Following Bookman's disappearance the police made reports that there were discrepancies in his accounts with the Carpenters' Union of which he was Treasurer. His successor in that office had been elected a short time before, and was to take charge of the union's finances at the first meeting in July.

Czar Expresses Gratitude of Himself and for Russia for Part President Played in Bringing About Peace.

"RUSSIA REMAINS POWER OF EAST"—WITTE TO CZAR

OSTER HADEN, Aug. 31.—Empress Nicholas of Russia has received gratefully the great part which President Roosevelt played in the successful negotiations for peace.

In a cablegram received by President Roosevelt today, Emperor Nicholas congratulated and thanked the President for his efforts.

The cablegram follows: "PETERHOF, Alexander, Aug. 31. 'President Roosevelt: 'Accept my congratulations and earnest thanks for having brought the peace negotiations to a successful conclusion owing to your personal energetic efforts. My country will gratefully recognize the great part you have played in the Portsmouth peace conference. 'NICHOLAS.'"

WORK ON THE TREATY GOES ALONG SLOWLY.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 31.—The drafting of the treaty of Portsmouth is proceeding slowly. Mr. Martens, assisted by Plancon and Pokotiloff, the Russian Minister to China, and Henry W. Dennison, the American adviser of the Foreign Office of Japan, assisted by Adachi and Ohtsuki, are at work and have completed the first two clauses.

Under the agreement of the first day of the conference, the treaty will be in French and English, and the French text will be the official text. The plan of work is for the treaty-makers to make rough drafts of their ideas of what the various clauses should contain. After that the envoys and Martens and Dennison will compare drafts, make changes and pound the phraseology into such shape that it is acceptable to both nations. The work is of the utmost importance. This treaty will be the law on which the relations of Russia and Japan will stand in the Far East, and the position of every country is important. The Japanese are very painstaking. They work slowly. They scrutinize every word and every punctuation mark. They intend to leave no loopholes. The clause in the treaty of Portsmouth relating to commercial relations of the two countries in all territory affected by the treaty, and establishing the most favored nation, which was but a preliminary, it is the intention of Russia and Japan to follow this treaty with a commercial treaty, which will be more minute detail than is possible in the peace treaty.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 31.—The Czar has made public M. Witte's cablegram on the conclusion of peace. M. 'Russia will remain in the Far East the great power which she hitherto has been and will be forever. 'We have applied to the execution of your orders all our intelligence and our Russian hearts. We beg your Majesty mercifully to forgive that we have been unable to do more.'"

STENOGRAPHER BRIDE OF ANDREW J. MOFFITT; ROMANCE WAS SECRET

MRS. ANDREW J. MOFFITT.

Member of Big Drug Firm Marries Young Woman Who Worked Daily in His Office, Where None Suspected Growing Attachment Between Them.

St. Louis society is much interested in the news of the marriage Wednesday of Andrew J. Moffitt, member of a prominent St. Louis family and connected with the long-established Moffitt-West Drug Co., of which his brother was one of the founders, to his office stenographer, Miss Myra Clarke of 3124 Franklin avenue. The marriage, which took place at Union Methodist Church, Garrison and Lucas avenues, Rev. Dr. Lucocock, pastor, officiating, and only the necessary witnesses attending, is a surprise alike to friends of the Moffitt family in local society and to Mr. Moffitt's own business associates. It is the outcome of a courtship which has been in progress for some time, but which was not suspected even by those in daily companionship with its principals. Mr. Moffitt was thought to be a confirmed bachelor, and is considerably older than the young woman who has served as his stenographer for some years past. Miss Clarke has been so long connected with the Moffitt-West Drug Co. and so faithful in her attention to her duties that she was looked upon as a fixture in the establishment, an earnest worker with no thought of matrimony disturbing the routine of her busy days.

She was known to Mr. Moffitt since her childhood, and it was through his influence that she first obtained employment with the company.

Several weeks ago Miss Clarke resigned her position and devoted herself to the task of selecting the furnishings for the pretty flat at 462 West Belle place, where she and her husband will reside. She has heretofore lived with her mother, Mrs. Lydia Clarke. The new Mrs. Moffitt, tall, fair, with laughing blue eyes and Titan-gold hair, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday that there was "no special romance" in her story.

"We were married yesterday, and are not going on any bridal tour," she said. "We tried to keep the news of the wedding quiet. Of course, I am proud of the name I now bear, because the name of Moffitt stands for something in St. Louis, but there's no romance. We just got married, that's all."

possible by abandoning a claim for an indemnity.

Furthermore Baron Kaneko said he was surprised by the terms of treaty and knew nothing of them officially until 10:30 p. Tuesday, when he received from Baron Komura a telegram briefly announcing that a peace agreement had been reached by the Japanese and the United States.

In proof of his declaration on this point, Baron Kaneko showed a dispatch from Komura dated Portsmouth, 10:30 p. m., Aug. 29, containing merely the announcement of peace that Komura had made to the press in general, without any comment on the situation.

Not long ago, he said, "I am in this city neither officially nor unofficially connected with the Government at Tokio. I have at no time been in communication with the Japanese peace commission in the tournament here."

This treaty is entirely due to the efforts of Japan, to his interest in civilization and to his devotion to humanity and to the peace of the world."

Continuing, he said: "I am in this city neither officially nor unofficially connected with the Government at Tokio. I have at no time been in communication with the Japanese peace commission in the tournament here."

INSANE, SAYS SON, LAWYER ENDS LIFE

Thomas E. Ralston Fires Bullet Into His Body in Saloon and Dies.

COUNSEL FOR WIGGINS CO

He Was Former Partner of the Late Judge Madill and a Scholar of Note.

Temporary insanity is assigned by his son as the cause of the suicide of Thomas E. Ralston, aged 66, prominent and talented attorney, who shot and killed himself in the saloon of John W. Howard, 311 North Garrison avenue, Wednesday night.

The one-time leader of the St. Louis bar is said by his son, David S. Ralston, to have taken little interest in life since the death of his wife ten years ago. He continued to act as counsel for the Wiggins Ferry Co., and retained most of his former power in legal circles, but in recent months he had drunk heavily.

Ralston was well known at Howard's place, where he was termed "Major" Ralston. About 7 p. m. he entered the saloon and ordered a waiter and milk. A negro waiter served him. Ten minutes later the bartender, Zell Creely, heard a shot fired and ran to the scene.

He found the aged man leaning back in his chair. Blood was on his clothes, and a revolver and powder-burned handkerchief, evidently used to muffle the report, indicated what had been done. The bullet had been aimed at the stomach.

McGrath and Dorothy heard the shot fired and ran to the scene. Life was gone when Dr. Moritz of 200 Olive street arrived. The body was taken to the morgue.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the family residence, 237 Washington avenue, to Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Ralston came to St. Louis in 1870 from Pennsylvania. He formed a partnership with the late Judge George A. Madill, which ended 11 years ago. In the following year he died.

He was a member of the St. Louis Bar Association and of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. Mr. Ralston was considered a man of brilliant achievements in his profession, and an accomplished scholar. He was an authority on modern history.

GIRLS WILL RUN PIKE.

South St. Louis Will Aid Carnegie Library Fund.

The Thalia Literary Society of Carondelet will reproduce a number of the Pike concessions in Turner Hall, Robert and Michigan avenues, Friday night under the name of "Afterthoughts of the Pike." The unique entertainment will be for the benefit of the library site fund, citizens of Carondelet having undertaken to furnish a site for a free Carnegie branch library.

NO "PUT AND CALL" DEALS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Notwithstanding the action of the Chicago Board of Trade in lifting the ban in trading in "puts" and "calls," there was apparently no disposition to do any trading of this character here today. "Put and call" are contrary to the Illinois State statutes. Threats of prosecution under the statutes seem to have been enough to keep the Chicago "put" and "call" business would be sent to Milwaukee.

He Was Twice Legally Separated From His Second Wife, and She Has Sundered Bonds With Previous Husbands—Failure to Cook Food Charged.

It is also the third for his wife, who was before her first marriage Miss Agnes Hammerle. Payne has been married four times. His first wife, who was before her marriage Katie Brown, died after they had lived together nine years. He was married to Matilda Leisow May 17, 1892. They lived together until Dec. 15, 1896, when Payne sued for divorce on the grounds that she did not properly attend to her household duties. The divorce was granted Feb. 19, 1897, and their one child was given to the mother. Payne daily passed the house of his divorced wife, and at length called and proposed for the second time. The marriage took place Aug. 27, 1897. The next divorce proceedings were filed by the wife and the divorce was granted Jan. 20, 1902, on the charge of desertion. They had two children, which were both given to the mother. According to his latest petition for divorce, Payne married Agnes Hammerle Oct. 12, 1903, and they separated Feb. 27, 1905. He says that one day when he returned from work to his dinner he found the house empty and his wife gone. He charges also that she failed to cook his meals and would not permit him to correct her son, Ben Nichols, who he says spends too much time in a poolroom.

Wedding Bells Rang Twice.
His latest wife has been married to three men. The first, Rudolph Nichols, she married in Lexington, Mo., 18 years ago. Leaving him a few years later, she sued for a divorce, which was granted her with custody of her son. Four years later she married Martin Klotz, with whom she lived three years. A divorce, granted in St. Louis, dissolved her second marriage. When she married Payne both thought that at last they had found partners with whom they could live happily. But quarrels arose and the wife left. Mrs. Payne denies that she failed to cook her husband's meals, saying that when anything was in the house to cook she cooked it. As for her son, she says he is employed in a poolroom, and she saw no reason to make him leave his place.

YELLOW BADGE ON HAPPY THOUSANDS

Conductors, Motormen and Families Throng Creve Coeur Picnic Grounds.

MEAT BARBECUE FOR ALL

Athletic Contests Gain Zest From Rivalry Between Various Divisions.

Every west-bound car of the United Railways Co. and every north and south car which transferred to one carried Thursday its yellow-badged passengers, men, women and children, laden with lunch baskets, who paid no fare, but whom the conductor greeted and the motorman turned around to smile at. They were employees of the company and their families on their way to the second day's picnic at Creve Coeur Lake.

The conductors who were working had good reason to welcome the company's guests. They had themselves been at the picnic Wednesday while their comrades had run the cars. Now they were rejoicing that the Thursday picnicers had the prospect of a day as perfect as that they had enjoyed at the lakeside.

The throng bound for the lake was much larger than that of Wednesday, when the attendance was 5000.

Company's Big Barbecue. Hundreds of pounds of beef and mutton, on the spits all night, and done, were ready to be served to the crowd in hot roast beef sandwiches.

The athletic contests promised to be even more interesting than those of Wednesday, as a pleasant rivalry was then established between different divisions. The rivalry seems to be more marked among the women, especially those of generous weight. The contestants were confident of breaking the first day's records.

The boys' band of 35 pieces, from the House of Refuge, under the leadership of Charles Richter, arrived at the grounds early and provided music throughout the day.

Secretary Porter of the arrangement committee announced the races and was in charge of the athletic grounds. William Simpson was in charge of the grounds on the bluff. The races were on the shore of the lake.

The baseball game between teams from the Eastern avenue line and the Broadway line was won by the Easterns, 9 to 5.

SALVETER'S RIVAL FREED BY WOMAN

Her Testimony That Haberdasher Struck First Blow Causes Acquittal.

DROVE HER BY HIS HOME

She Declares Husband Ended His Life Because of Merchant's Attention.

It took a jury in the Circuit Court at Clayton 15 minutes Wednesday night to agree on the acquittal of Louis E. Guenther, city salesman for a brewery, charged with assault on Charles C. Salveter of 5822 Clemens avenue, the Broadway haberdasher. Guenther was acquitted on the strength of Jessie Edwards' testimony that Salveter struck the first blow.

Jessie Edwards, who lives at 2636 Lucase avenue, and on whose account and in whose presence the men fought, described the encounter, which took place July 16 at Moriches Grove, near the victoria in which she had been riding with Salveter. She told a story which differed widely from that of Salveter.

He said that Guenther, who was displeased with his attentions to Jessie Edwards, had struck him with a billy when his back was turned; had beaten him with the butt of a revolver and kicked him while he was down. Jessie Edwards testified that Salveter struck Guenther first with his cane, after calling him a scoundrel.

Each Said Other 'Phoned.

Salveter said he was 54 years old, married, and living with his wife. He had known Jessie Edwards for two and a half or three years. He told of one occasion when he encountered Guenther at Jessie Edwards' house and Guenther ordered him out of the house. He denied that he threw up his billy and asked Guenther not to strike him. Although he did not appear to be more than 24 years old, Mrs. Edwards said she had been married four times. Two of her husbands disappeared, one died of a natural death and the last, she said, committed suicide on account of the attentions she received from Salveter. She said that when she told Salveter she was going to marry Guenther it made him so furious that he came to the house with two bottles of liquor and flashed a revolver and raised a particular sort of a row.

"Boro-Formalin" (Elmer & Amend) used as a tooth and mouth wash in the morning leaves the mouth sweet and pure all day.

ASKS SCHOOL ALL YEAR

Member of Chicago Board of Education Says Vacations Make Young Criminals.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Dr. J. F. Chatal, member of the Chicago Board of Education, has presented a resolution to the board doing away with summer vacations. He states that these periods of rest may be all right in small towns and in the country, but that they make hundreds of small criminals in the congested district of the city. Twelve months of school are recommended.

YOU CAN'T GO SOUTH.

But That Need Not Keep You at Home.

One of the remote and novel results of the quarantine policy adopted by all of the principal southern cities is to curtail in a large measure the business of the excursion company, which has been offering weekly inducements to St. Louisans to spend their Sundays out of town. The Sportsman's League, by which a majority of the excursions are arranged and handled, announces that no more pleasure trips will be made on any of the southbound trips until Oct. 14. It is hoped that by that date the southern panic will be at an end, and northern visitors will be welcome to the land of cotton and cape jasmynes. Meanwhile excursions will be arranged for northern points as usual, and no Sunday will be without its opportunity for St. Louis people to have a good time without undue expenditure.

GIRL FELL INTO CELLAR.

Turned Her Head to Read Sign and Did Not See Opening.
Minerva Benderoth, 12 years old, of 411 Olive street is at her home in a critical condition, the result of a fall into an open cellar way in the sidewalk in front of a grocery on Olive street near Sarah Wednesday afternoon. She is injured and has cuts and bruises on her face and body. While walking along the street she turned her head to read a decorated sign on a street car. She did not see the open cellar way and fell into it.

30 MILE AN HOUR CHASE OF AUTOS

Police "Skiddoo" Wagons Have Lively Run Through Lindell Boulevard.

OLD VEHICLE DISTANCED

New Machine Overhauled Man and Two Women, Who Were About to Escape.

A chase through Lindell boulevard from Whittier street to the Washburn bridge in Forest Park Wednesday night called for the fastest going that has yet been required of the police automobiles—so fast, indeed, that No. 1 was compelled to drop out. The new machine won out and the faster of the two speed-breakers was captured. The race of the four machines created much excitement at various points along the boulevard. Policeman Conney, in charge of the No. 1 machine, was stationed near Whittier street in the shade of trees when two automobiles went past at what he considered excessive speed. He started in pursuit and says that his speedometer was soon registering 30 miles an hour. Nevertheless, he could see himself dropping farther and farther behind. At King's highway one of the racers came to a stop and was overtaken by Policeman Conney. The other continued at the same speed. There was where the swift new machine of the department took a hand, ending the state of affairs. Policeman Whittier sent his machine after the fugitive. He was following close when the pursued slowed down at the bridge and he made the arrest without trouble. Raymond Bowers, chauffeur, 4723 Page boulevard, was held at Forest Park Station. Benjamin L. Behr of 420 Maryland avenue, arrested at King's highway by Policeman Conney, was taken to the police station together with two women who were riding with him. He was released within a short time.

GERMANS SLOW TO BELIEVE

American Girl Lectured to Them in Support of Co-education.

By Leased Wire From The New York Bureau of The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Among the passengers arriving on the Oceanic was Miss Annie Nix of St. Paul. Miss Nix is said to be the only American woman to have called into conference by the educational authorities of a continental country. She is largely responsible for the introduction of the co-educational system in Germany and believes that it will eventually spread to other European countries. This year I lectured on the subject of co-education, said she. "The Germans at first argued that the presence of boys and girls in the same school was mutually distracting, but since I have seen the results in the American school, I have changed my mind. I believe that co-education is the best system for the future of the world."

"I have made a close study of the German schools, and I am bound to confess that, except in the matter of education they are ahead of the American schools. There are too many facts to fill in the American school. We try to do too much in the way of teaching. We try to teach the child to do too much in every other walk of life. The course of study is too complex."

BABY WASHED INTO SEWER

Body Found Three Miles From Point Where Accident Happened.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 31.—The body of a little girl, 19 months old, who was washed down a sewer at the corner of Division and Gold streets, near her father's grocery store, during a hard downpour of rain, was found in Jones Falls, under the St. Paul street bridge, three miles from the point where the girl had been swept into the sewer on Aug. 29. The little girl had been with its mother, who was called into the store to wait on a customer. She turned about just in time to see the child's dress disappearing in the rushing water.

Cut Down on Promise to Pay, Negro Tells Police.

GALCONDA, Ill., Aug. 31.—In refusing to give up $140 alleged to have been stolen from a guest at a leading hotel, a negro porter claims to have been taken to a secluded spot at the edge of a rope. After hanging for a short time he was cut down on the promise to turn over the money. Instead he informed the police. He is now in jail and three men named Clayton, Shelley and Reeves are under bond. The former two railroad men and latter a saloonkeeper. They are charged with assault and attempt to kill.

POLICEMEN ARE
SHIFTED AROUNDOpening of New Eleventh District Station Leads to Many Important Transfers.

Serjts. Louis Nolte and Richard Fay have been transferred from Central to Manchester Avenue and Dayton Street Police stations, respectively. The transfers constitute a phase of the changes that have followed the creation of the new Eleventh, or Newstead Avenue, Police District, the station being on Newstead, between Laclede Avenue and Pine Street.

Nolte and Fay are said to be staunch folk men. Their transfer from the busy and important Central District to their new posts is considered anything but a promotion. Chief of Police Kelly explains it by saying that good desk sergeants were needed at Manchester Avenue and Dayton Street.

Among the other changes made were the transfers of Lieut. Schwartz from Angell to North Market street Station, of Lieut. Walsh from North Market to Carr Street Station, and of Serjt. Nat Cummings from Carr to Angell Street Station, there to act as lieutenant.

The force assigned to the new Eleventh Police District consists of one lieutenant, five sergeants, 40 patrolmen and three probationary patrolmen. The assignment of officers is as follows: Lieut. Nicholas Mansfield, from the Fourth District; Serjt. John Berry, from the Eighth; Serjt. Patrick Kennedy, from the Sixth; Serjt. James Lavin, from the Eighth; Serjt. James St. John, from the Ninth and Serjt. Henry Sullivan, from the Eleventh.

Two Women Who Claim Man Have Conference in Effort to Reach
Agreement on ProsecutionJOHN W. REIDY, ALIAS STONE, MRS. LILLIE STONE.

Mrs. Sadie Reidy Is Not Certain That She Wants Her Husband Convicted and Talks of Hiring Lawyer to Defend Him Though She Caused His Arrest.

Mrs. Sadie Reidy and Mrs. Lillie Stone, the two women who claim to be wives of John W. Reidy, alias Stone, are in conference in Mrs. Reidy's room at the Autenreith Hotel at Clayton with reference to what shall be done about the prosecution of Reidy.

Mrs. Reidy remained in Clayton until today at the request of Reidy for the conference.

Mrs. Reidy remained in Clayton until 11 o'clock. As she stepped from an electric car with her 6-month-old baby in her arms, Mrs. Reidy, who was standing at the hotel, said: "She has brought the baby along. I suppose she thinks it will arouse my sympathy."

Mrs. Stone went first to the jail. After talking half an hour with Reidy she went to the hotel. Mrs. Reidy saw her coming and went up to her room, leaving directions for Mrs. Stone to be shown up to the room.

Mrs. Stone was taken to Mrs. Reidy's room and the two were together for upwards of two hours.

May Hire Lawyer.
Mrs. Sadie Reidy is willing to hire a good lawyer to defend John W. Reidy, whose arrest she has caused on the charge of bigamy, provided Reidy is convicted. If he is not convicted she will not pay the lawyer.

Mrs. Reidy said at Clayton Thursday: "I want to see Reidy punished. I would like for him to be sent to the Penitentiary for about two years. Good behavior would let him out in 18 months."

"At the same time I am sorry for him. He is ignorant of the law and thinks he can do anything and not be punished for it. He has been drinking too. A stay in prison would teach him a lesson and sober him up and do him good all around."

"He asked me to get my father to go on his bond. I won't do that. I told him yesterday afternoon that I would raise money on my diamonds and get bond for him, but he would not consent to that. He knows I have lost jewelry on him before."

"I would like for him to get out so that he could earn money to pay a lawyer to defend him."

Is Sorry for Him.
"I am sorry for him, as I would be for anyone in trouble, but not to the extent of dropping the prosecution against him. Still I want him to have a fair show. I want him to be defended by a good lawyer and fairly convicted. I would be willing to pay his attorney's fee if he was convicted, but not otherwise."

Mrs. Reidy paused a moment and added: "I am very sorry for the baby. I would be willing to take it and have my parents raise it."

"Reidy asked me yesterday if I was going to get married. I told him no."

Transsiberian Road.

Mrs. Catherine M. Rilliet of 3018 North Garrison Avenue, mother of Charles Rilliet, member of the Fiala North Pole expedition, received a letter from him Thursday morning, the first message to come from him, except the cablegram of a few words received Aug. 10, since he sailed away to the frozen north two years ago.

It was written at Tromsø, Norway, Aug. 15. In it he says he left the "Arctic Hell" Aug. 1, and arrived here Aug. 11. He tells of the pleasure it gave him to receive on board the relief ship, Terra Nova, many letters from his mother and other relatives and presents which had been sent on the long journey during his absence with none too great confidence that they would reach him.

He tells also how glad he was to learn that all of his St. Louis relatives and especially his mother are well. He does not know when he will return to America.

He was to leave Aug. 19 for St. Petersburg via Stockholm. From there he planned to go over the Transsiberian Railroad to Port Arthur and China, but save that if he has difficulty in getting through the czar's country he will probably abandon the trip and go to London by way of Amsterdam.

The cable received by Mrs. Rilliet Aug. 10 was sent from Honningsvåg, Norway, a small hamlet on the north-

Joe Burdette, Company C recruit, is in Jefferson Barracks Hospital with a load of buckshot in the calf of his leg, the result of trouble with Mrs. Louis Gregory, wife of the cook on a construction train on the Iron Mountain Railroad. All of the shot have not been picked out, and the wound is very painful.

Mrs. Gregory fired the shot, she said, after Burdette had acted in a manner which offended her.

She was held under arrest by 100 sentries sent out by Serjt. Jenkins of the Ninth Cavalry to hold her until the arrival of Lieut. Cox, officer of the day. On hearing the circumstances of the shooting related by witnesses, Lieut. Cox ordered the woman's release.

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 31.—Two youths named Jose Martinez and Hudson Romero have been killed by the explosion of a box of dynamite they used for a target, half a mile from Chama, Rio Arriba County.

The boys were rabbit hunting. Not finding any game, when they reached the powder house of the Denver & Rio Grande Railway Co. near Chama, they set up a box of dynamite as a target.

The box contained 40 pounds of the explosive and the explosion of the dynamite set off four tons of powder.

MOSQUITOES' BITES
GIVE MANY MALARIAMany Cases at City Hospital, and Physicians Suggest Means to Check Spread.

QUININE IS PREVENTIVE

West End Is Being Infected With Ailment Originating in Crowded District.

If malaria becomes much more prevalent in St. Louis it may become the fashion for everybody to carry quinine boxes as snuff boxes were once carried, and the morning greeting may be accompanied by an invitation to have a capsule.

There is much malaria in the fashionable West End as well as in the districts where men's work exposes them to infection. It is supposed that the disease has been carried into fashionable precincts by men who have been bitten by mosquitoes, which have, in turn, bitten residents.

West End physicians are visiting the City Hospital to study typical cases of active malarial, the pernicious type of the disease. There are five cases of this type of the disease in the hospital now. There are nearly seventy-five cases of all types in the hospital. In the last 24 hours 11 of the 21 cases received have been malarial cases, and in the preceding 24 hours 13 of 23 patients received were diagnosed as suffering with malaria. In two weeks 80 out of 377 patients received have had malaria.

Quinine is a specific both for cure and for prevention. Two grains three times a day is almost certain to prevent it. Not all mosquitoes are malarial mosquitoes. They can be told by the way they perform. The malarial mosquito tries to stand on his head when he sucks it. "Four and being very plain, mosquito carries himself more horizontally."

BIGGEST WEST OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

Press day dispatches.

Japan had the wisdom not to "stand pat."

The United States opened the door of Japan and Japan has opened the door of China.

grown in Missouri, but the winds are more kindly in Missouri than in Kansas.

JAPANESE TRADE.

The statement of foreign trade during the first six months of 1905 shows that Japanese commerce has not been affected by the war.

The imports, first six months of 1905, were $142,- 650,000, as against $98,052,000 for the corresponding period in 1904, an increase of 58.9 per cent.

The largest increases come from the United States,
the United Kingdom and British India. Imports from the United States, six months 1905, amounted to $31,921,000; in 1904, corresponding period, $14,- 328,000. Imports from Great Britain rose from $14,982,000 to $32,623,000. Imports from Germany fell from $10,794,000 to $6,985,000.

Exports show an insignificant increase for this period. First six months of 1904 they were $68,- 456,000; in 1905, $71,098,000. The United States took $19,910,000 Japanese products in the first six months of 1904 and $20,304,000 in 1905.

It is observed that the gains in imports are not only in articles the importation of which was necessarily stimulated by the war, such as flour, beans, blankets, etc., but in other articles as well, showing a general industrial expansion. Thus the importation of raw cotton rose from $17,810,000 to $34,211,- 000; manufactured cottons from $1,124,000 to $4,- 005,000.

On the whole, Japan seems to have endured the strain without great loss. And when it is remembered that her credit in the money markets of the world has risen steadily since the first shot was fired, there is reason to believe that the empire will soon return to the normal ways of peaceful industry.

The hysterical joy of M. Witte is like unto that of a man who finds that he has been robbed of his watch, pin and purse, but the robbers overlooked his carfare.

MISS ROOSEVELT AND THE EM- PIRE.

Miss Alice Roosevelt is about to become the guest of one of the most notable women of history—the Dowager Empress of China—a woman whose career and methods are a close parallel to those of Catharine de Medici's.

A terrible woman in many ways is this aged tyrant of China, one whose moral character would cause her to be execrated were she a dweller in the West. But the crimes of which she is accused since she began her fight for power as the second wife of Hsin-fu are judged by the standards of the ancient East.

To her, these crimes were steps toward the welfare of her country, as she understood it. China for the Chinese has been the principle of her life, and it was for this that she has coveted and schemed and slain; it was for this that she lent her aid to the Boxers. She tried to brake the wheels of progress, and she still stands in China for all that is Chinese, opposing the exploitation of her country by foreigners.

Such is the strange old woman who is to be the hostess of the young daughter of the President of this country. If Miss Roosevelt has eyes to see and ears to hear she may learn many interesting things from her hostess. That the Empress can learn from her guest is impossible, for The Che is too old to learn and will hardly admit the possibility of anything foreign being worth the learning.

"Billy" Taggart suggested a novel method of legal procedure in cases of matrimonial unhappiness when he wrote Mrs. Taggart that the Captain "has got out an injunction and is going to sue for divorce."
But if the injunction should prove effective the divorce would be unnecessary.

A CHAPTER OF FANTASIES.

The Mayor of Huddersfield, England, has made a most interesting demonstration of the extraordinary power of money.

It was suggested by the growth of race suicide in Huddersfield. Before he took office 143 babies out of every thousand born in the town died before completing their first year.

After his installation he announced that in a certain ward he would pay $1 for every child born which lived to be a year old. Rich and poor were included. The result is startling. Only two babies out of nearly a hundred in that district have died, the others earning the money for their parents by living one year.

The Mayor of Huddersfield has solved the problem which President Roosevelt put in the foreground of great terrors. The money prize for one-year-olds—that's the thing. Offer prizes for the two-year-old class and the three-year, etc., until the special period of infancy are passed.

The papas and mammas of Huddersfield probably do not differ essentially from papas and mammas elsewhere. And if a pound note could save a baby one year in Huddersfield, why not in New York or St. Louis?

The world is full of fantasies. We have fantastic problems, fantastic solutions, fantastic public officers and fantastic results of their fantastic fancies.
And yet on the whole the world is probably more nearly sane than ever before.

The locking up at the North Market Street Station of the man who complained to the police that he had been robbed, seems to be another example of the new police method, inaugurated by the Chief in the Twenty-first street case, of dealing with the complainants instead of the offenders. If citizens shall be convinced by the locking up of all bold persons who dare to complain of crimes that complaint is dangerous, all the troubles of the police will cease.
There will be no complaints and the police stations can be turned into rest resorts and headquarters for pinchbeck parties. The plan is a brilliant scheme to dispose of the problem of crime in the cities, so far as the police are concerned. As for the public, that is different.

A SHELVED BOGY.

The bogey of the yellow peril must be laid on the shelf, its potency as a means of arousing the fear and anger of the Occidentals is gone. Japan extracted its teeth, smoothed its bristling hair, calmed its fierce eyes and ironed out the wrinkles in its horrid front. Its sharp, curved sword has fallen from its hands.

The jingoes and prophets of evil have reason to be sad over the sudden taking off of the yellow peril bogey. It has served their purpose well. They have used it to impress upon the people of the Western nations the necessity of preparing for war with all of Asia and setting armed guards on all the coasts and boundaries of the yellow races. We have been told that Japan harbored thoughts of excluding Western nations from Asia, of seizing the Asiatic continent and training the hordes of China for worldwide conquest. We have been assured that under the mask of fairness and benevolence Japan concealed insatiable greed and lust of conquest; that her success against Russia had made the nation arrogant and insolent.

At one stroke Japan disposed of all of these charges and fears by proving herself more magnanimous than Christendom dreamed any nation would be. She has set an example of humanity and magnanimity to the Christian nations. The yellow peril vanishes.

A searching investigation is promised in New Orleans after the epidemic subsides. Everybody wants to know if it is true that the health authorities knew of the presence of yellow fever a month before they allowed it to be reported. An investigation is always good. Just so, it is sensible to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen because, mayhap, the thief forgot to take the currycomb and we can save that anyhow.

SEQUOYAH.

The decision of the statehood convention at Muskogee to apply for the admission of the Indian Territory as a State under the name of Sequoyah does deserve honor to one of the really great men whom America owes to its aboriginal red men.

George Guess, the half breed, known to his tribe
as Sequoyah, was the inventor of the Cherokee alphabet, by means of which he brought written knowledge in their own tongue to his people. He was also a statesman and a peaceful leader among them. He has already been signally honored by the naming of the "Big Tree" of California "Sequoyia Gigantea" after him. In England this tree is known as "Wellingtonia," after quite a different type of great man.

Why not Sequoyah? It is a musical name, easily spoken and remembered. Twenty-eight of our states bear Indian titles, usually place-names. Four are named for kings—Louisiana, Georgia and the two Carolinias—and three for queens—Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia—whose titles recall the virgin Queen, Elizabeth. One, Delaware, is named for Lord Dela Warr; one, Pennsylvania, for the plain Quaker commoner, William Penn; one for George Washington, but his name had to wait until 1890 for statehood honors. No other state commemorates in its title any American citizen. Two states—Colorado and Florida—have Spanish titles.
The worst choice of all was that which condemns
three fine states to wear the names of English York, Jersey and Hampshire, with the belittling prefix
"New." Though such fanciful names as Indiana,
Vermont and Montana are rather unfortunate.

It wasn't Witte's wit, but Japan's generosity, that saved Russia.

NEW FLEA AGAINST CRUELTY.

The trial to take place at South Norwalk, Conn., to decide the question of cruelty to a turtle, will interest humane persons, because the church doctrines who are prosecuting the keeper of the turtle have set up a new plea.

Here is a 610-pound sea turtle, which had its flippers tied over its back so tightly that they bleed.
Old sailors and doctors are prepared to give evidence that turtles feel no pain. Other doctors insist that turtles have nervous systems and can feel.

But the plea set up by the deacons is that, even if the turtle be insensible to pain, they are not.
They say it almost makes them faint to see the blood trickling from the turtle's tied flippers.
This is the real and most urgent reason why animals should be treated humanely. No one knows whether or not a fly suffers from a mischievous boy pulls its wing off, but we all unite in reproaching him for cruelty.

No one has a right to shock the sensibilities of others by ill-treating brutes. Modern sense and sentiment are against the callous man.

TOO SYMPATHETIC.

From the Washington Star.
"There is such a thing as being too considerate and tender-hearted."

for fear of hurting the germs."

ging up her record. He finds that she is the "pier" of "lady wild animal trainers," but no explanation is offered why she is not equally pious with gentleman wild animals. He states also that she "possesses natural traits over the average kind of animal that appeals to her wonderful acts in the steel arena and to her audiences." It is not exactly clear from this in what Salina's greatness consists, but no one can doubt after reading it that Salina is an unusual girl.

NEW YORK EDITORIAL OPINION

By Leased Wire From the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The World criticizes M. Witte for exulting over his "victory," saying:
"In contrast with this exultant tone of the successful poker player put Baron Komura's dignified announcement of peace concluded 'for the sake of humanity and of civilization,' or Baron Kaneko's word that 'Japan stands for peace with justice; Russia for peace with honor. When money was the thing on which hinged the peace of the two nations we sacrificed anything for peace.'"

"Japan has shown to the marvelling world a war almost without blunders, soldiers without fear, army contractors without graft, citizens without selfishness. She finishes the lesson by announcing a peace of truly Christian generosity and forbearance with the gravity and decorum which so great and beneficent a work merits."

Some of the alarm caused by the presidential adventure in the submarine boat was due to the fact that Mr. Fairbanks is Vice-President.—The Press.

Secretary Bonaparte's vigorous action

aster is to rule the Navy Department,"

THE MISSOURI SUNDAY CLOSING LAW

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Albert Grabherr, secretary of the Beer Drivers and Stablesmen's Union, in his published letter to Gov. Folk, discussing the Sunday closing law, says: "The law was passed and was one of the sundry bills introduced at that session and was known to the people at the time as the notorious Newberry law, and as you (referring to Gov.
Folk) were probably not a resident of this State at the time the law was enacted, you may be excused for not knowing the origin, or the occasion for the enactment of the law."

Mr. Grabherr is in error in his reference to the time when the act was passed, but correct as to the absence of Gov. Folk from the State at the time; he might in this reference have also included himself.

The act referred to and so much discussed pro and con was enacted in 1885, and is found in the Revised Statutes of that year, and is as follows:

Every person who shall expose to sale any goods, wares or merchandise, or shall keep open any saloon, bar, or other place where any such goods, wares or merchandise are exposed to sale, on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than fifty dollars.

In the revising session of 1905, the words "after 9 o'clock in the morning" were stricken out and the present law enacted and is and has been the law for 60 years. It is found in every volume of the Revised Statutes published in this time. It is not a Democratic mea-does not share the view of his predecessor that guilt is never possible. Only by establishing the neglect of the individuals can the fault of the system be indicted and corrected. By upsetting the verdict of the Benington case Mr.

Bonaparte has fractured some ancient and dangerous traditions of the navy, and he is to be thanked for having attacked a serious problem in an energetic and fearless manner."

"It is not for a moment supposable that any other power has deliberately incited Morocco thus to foment France," says the Tribune. "Yet there can be little doubt that Morocco has acted so as a direct result of Germany's intervention between her and France. It has long been a favorite trick of some Mahometan powers to 'play off' one European nation against another. Morocco doubtless thinks she can thus play Germany against France, and that if she fouts France she will have the support of Germany. In that we have no doubt she will find herself mistaken."

I see by the papers that about nine-tenths of the woes of the people, especially the divorces, which are worse than all others, are caused by liquor, and I give a few of the troubles which it will produce, trusting that our men will produce and therein a little food for thought. Liquor will produce: Intoxication, dissipation, degradation, degradation, temptation, defilement, humiliation, incarceration, irritation, personation, lamentation, profanity, destruction, alienation, indignation, confession, assassination, condemnation, ruin.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I see by this evening's Post-Dispatch that another new cure has been found for consumption. I wish the world of science and sympathy would give us poor rheumatics a little attention, as it is dreadful and as little understood as consumption. Two years ago I was suddenly stricken with it. First my savings went, then every dollar as fast as I could earn it. I have lost my position as a skilled worker and in a short while will not be able to work at all.
The future holds for me years of helplessness, a charge of the city and my little children beggars, all due to this dreadful sickness. If anyone can recommend a cure, would be glad to hear from them. MRS. H. R.

WOMAN'S BEST GIFT

By Nikola Greely Smith.

A YOUNG married man takes exception to a statement made recently in another department of the Post-Dispatch that a girl of 16 is too young to marry. He cites in refutation his own experience of marriage at 23 to a girl of 16, who has since become the mother of five children and looks scarcely a day older than when he married her.

Now, a girl of 16 is really not as much too young to marry as is the usual young man of 24. And it is entirely in the girl's interest that they must both be considered too young to assume the responsibilities and cares of matrimony.

Before 25 or 30 a young man is not apt to know his own mind, matrimonially. He admires pretty nearly all women indiscriminately. Apropos of this a man told me a very amusing thing the other day.
"A young fellow of 20," he said, "who was always raving over one girl or another, devoted 20 minutes to telling me of the rare beauty of his latest discovery. When he got all through his ravings, I said:
'By the way, Bill, is she black or white?'"

The very young man is fickle, unstable. He marries without due reflection or experience, and generally makes up the deficit afterward.

The girl of 16 is equally indiscriminating. She is not apt to receive any very brilliant proposals, for men of judgment do not usually select brats-and-butter wives. She accepts the first proposal that she receives and often spends a lifetime regretting it.

The aforementioned Post-Dispatch reader has had an experience equally fortunate and unusual.

It is the wife of 16 who has cause for repining, not the husband. For she has no youth. To have the care of one or two children before she is 20 means for her absolute slavery, which the very domestic woman may find altogether sweet and satisfying, but which to the woman with a wider horizon is insupportable.

It would be reasonable enough for the rich to marry young. But they are precisely the class addicted to late marriages.

Marriage at 16 makes a woman old and settled at 30 in her feelings, if not in her looks. For her a husband merely serves to bridge the chasm between her last doll and her first baby, and then becomes simply a purveyor of shoes for it and the subsequent arrivals.

Her youth is a woman's rarest and best gift, and she who marries too early deliberately sacrifices that brilliant, iridescent bubble of romance for the pot-roast and cabbage of matrimony. Very often she doesn't realize her loss, but if she does she will ask sadly and in vain:

"Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory and the dream?"

MY LOVE AFFAIR

The Story of a Young Girl's Heart

By SOPHIE WITTE

SISTER OF THE RUSSIAN PEACE ENVOY

Translated from the Russian by Herman Bernstein

(Copyrighted)

TRANSLATED FROM THE RUSSIAN.
SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
Maria Sergeyevna, a Russian girl staying in St. Louis, is in love with a young man named Yury Leonov, a famous painter. The attraction between them is mutual, and they soon fall in love with each other. They quarrel over a trivial matter.

CHAPTER IV.

A Strange Fable.

He stared at me as though asking: "I have guessed it, haven't I?" I replied to his silent but eloquent questions also with silence, but with no less eloquence—I started to smoke another cigarette.

Leonov ceased laughing, but he resumed staring into my face. His expressive, half-closed eyes seemed to say now. At first I turned aside each time I let the smoke out of my mouth, but after a while, having mustered courage, I blew a heavy volume of smoke right into Leonov's face. He frowned.

"Take care, Maria Sergeyevna, that your cigarette should not play you such an unexpected trick as the magic eye-glass did in a certain fairy tale. If you do not know the story I'll tell it to you right away—shall I?"

Without waiting for my consent Leonov began his story:

"In a certain kingdom there lived a King and Queen. The whole kingdom consisted of a little island in the middle of the great ocean. The King and the Queen had only one son, who grieved his parents intensely because he refused to eat fish, which constituted the exclusive food of the entire small population of the island. I do not know what the crown prince did eat—the story is silent on that point—but he did not take any fish into his mouth from the very day of his birth in spite of the fearful entreaties and stern threats of his parents. He explained that his inexplicable but inexorable obstinacy was due to his inviolable aversion for the scale of the fish, the very sight of which would make him sick.

"Thus the crown prince grew up into manhood and it was time for him to marry. Then the King and Queen resolved to send their son away to look for a bride among the princesses of foreign lands. But in this matter again the stubborn son refused to obey his parents. He announced to them that there was no need for him to travel far in search of a bride since he had found one already on their own island. True, she was not a princess—she was a fish-girl, but in his eyes, he said, her golden locks successfully replaced a crown, and her loving heart—a rich dowry.

"Again there were tearful entreaties and stern threats, but a endeavor to dissuade him were fruitless. The Crown Prince's irresistible love for the fish-girl was just as strong as was his aversion for the scales of fish.

"Having shed all their tears and exhausted all their threats in vain, the King and Queen resolved to consult a certain wizard. When the wise old man heard of the double grief of the royal parents, he gave them a magic eye-glass and said that it would perform a miracle. As soon as the Crown Prince looks at his fish-girl through this glass he will turn away from her filled with the same aversion for her as he feels when looking at fish. The wizard's advice was carried out in every detail. And a miracle it was indeed performed, but an unexpected miracle it was! When the loving Crown Prince beheld his bride—the fish-girl—through the magic eye-glass, and when he noticed on her skin something like the scale of a fish he . . .

Leonov stopped, testing my curiosity. He came closer to me and looked into my eyes under the broad brim of my hat, which was slightly bent down on one side.

"Our eyes met."

"I suppose you can guess the end of the story?" he asked with a smile.

"No? Then I'll tell it to you."

"The loving crown prince began to eat fish."

When he uttered these words, finishing his story, I was choking with smoke. Taking the cigarette out of my mouth I flung it back over my head on the grass.

Leonov immediately jumped up from the bench, stepped over it dexterously and disappeared behind me. I did not turn to see what he was doing.

In a few seconds he returned, holding my cigarette, still lighted, in his mouth, and stopped in front of me without saying a word. I could not see the expression of his face behind the rings of smoke; besides, I did not dare look straight into his eyes—I feared lest he should read in my eyes the suspense of the question which remained unanswered: "What is it? A joke or a declaration of love?"

Yegor Ilyich has decided that we should leave the day after tomorrow, and Leonov has postponed his departure "for an indefinite length of time." But then I would have to stay in the house and I could not see Leonov anyway; he visits us so rarely. Or shall I ask Katya to feign sickness instead of myself? But she will hardly consent to such a sacrifice for the sake of my "business situation"—as she calls it—and besides Yegor Ilyich would not hesitate to drag along his wife even though she were sick, just to regain his own health as soon as possible. What a hard, deep-rooted egoist!

It cannot be helped, I'll have to go. Leonov is not yet aware of the fact that we are going to leave Karlsbad the day after tomorrow. It will be interesting to see what an impression this unexpected piece of news will make upon him.

AUG. 6, 11 o'clock in the morning.

"Have you heard of the news?" I asked Leonov, when I met him early in the morning near the Postoffice—he was entering while I was leaving the Postoffice.

"We are going away tomorrow."

"I know it," he interrupted me.

"We are going direct to Vienna," I said. "Yegor Ilyich is hastening to consult the physicians there."

A half hour later I met him again. I had just bought the red hat which had tempted me for some time, and on my way back from the milliner's I came face to face with Katya. She went into raptures over my new hat, clapping her hands, she exclaimed enthusiastically: "A red hat! How charming! How charming!" Suddenly a loud voice rang out behind us: "Don't make so much noise on the street!" I turned around—it was Yegor Ilyich, of course, and with him was Leonov.

"Just look at them," said Yegor to Leonov. "One sister stuck a foolish chimney-top with a dead duck on her head and the other one, looking at her, admires it like a fool."

Katya paid no attention to the epithet "fool," having grown accustomed to his compliments during the seven years of their married life, but she thought it necessary to stand up in defense of my new hat.

"It is not at all a chimney-top, nor is that a duck—it is a charming, magnificent hat—it is the height of fashion!" Yury Vasilyevich said, turned, addressing Leonov, "tell us, as an artist, your opinion of Maria's hat?"

"Yes, yes," interposed her husband, "tell us your frank opinion as a judicious man."

"I dare not do it," replied Leonov; "Maria Sergeyevna does not like to hear an unpleasant truth, and I cannot say a pleasant untruth."

Tableau!

Katya maintained her silence in confusion, while Yegor Ilyich looked triumphant.

Without saying anything in reply to Leonov's caustic remark, I turned away and was about to go my way when Katya stopped me.

"Maria," she said, "wait awhile. I was looking for you just before I met you. You see, we are getting ready to go out to Hishubier and spend the day there. Yury Vasilyevich has invited us to dinner with him there. Of course, you'll come along with us?"

"I don't know."

"But it would be interesting to know it," interposed Leonov.

"Interesting? To whom?" I asked, gazing at him.

"To me."

"You are too kind."

"And you—too inconsistent in your views!" I interrupted him harshly, "and too hasty in your conclusions, erroneously ascribing to kindness my simple desire to know beforehand whether it would be necessary to order one carriage or two carriages."

"It isn't worth while to take an additional carriage for me alone. I shall not go," I said reservedly, but resolutely.

"What did I tell you?" exclaimed Yegor Ilyich triumphantly.

"You! Yes!" Leonov agreed with him rather unwillingly; while Yegor Ilyich went on rubbing his hands for pleasure.

"What did I tell you?" I knew that Maria Sergeyevna would prefer to ramble up and down Alte Wiese, where she hopes to discover some new style of a hat, according to the height of fashion or, at least, some piquant French novel.

"Yegor Ilyich!" Katya interrupted her husband, reproachfully. "Maria! she shouted, but I was already on the other side of the street."

"It seemed to me that I walked very fast, but Leonov must have walked still faster, for when I reached our house he was already at the entrance. I wanted to go past him, without stopping, but he stationed himself in the doorway and outstretching his arms said playfully:

"I shall not let you pass until you consent to go with me to Hishubier."

"Then," said I, without lifting my eyes, "I'll have to pass the night on the street."

A CITIZEN'S RUBAIYAT

With Apologies to The Persian.

Awake! the Sultan from his tower, with might,
Has screwed the screw and put the lid on tight,
And woe to him who dares to sell the BOOZE!
All must close fast the doors at twelve tonight.

Dreaming, when Saturday was drawing nigh,
I heard a Voice within the Tavern cry,
"Awake! Ye Drinkers, all the can and cup, Tomorrow's Sunday and it will be dry."

"With me across the muddy stream, Oh fly
Away from rigid laws that keep us dry,
Where name of Sultan Joseph bears no weight,
Let's go and have our Sundays—you and I."

"There with a stein of beer beneath the Bough,
Our Sunday dinner, too—and you, MY Frow,
Beside me singing ragtime to the Kid,
Oh! East St. Louis were Paradise Enow."

"Some for a quiet Sabbath day, and some—
Sigh for the beverage that is to come,
Ah! leave the can and let the bottle go—
ME for the beer—You can have your RUM!"

"Make ye the most of time—and Money spend,
Before the ban of Sunday shall descend,
With can to mouth, let not a day go dry,
Yet Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday—to the end."

Ah! Love! could Thou and I with Joe conspire,
To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire,
Would not we shatter it to bits—and then—
Re-mould it nearer to the Heart's Desire?"

And Love! the Sultan is a Mighty man!
Let's help him in his city-cleaning plan.
Rout out the Dirt! It is our City, too,
Don't knock! but help—Turn down an empty Can!

LITTLE STORIES OF THE DAY

By ROSE MARION.

"FINE crawfish soup," said Officer Stinger.

"Did you ever eat frogs' legs?" asked Capt. McNamee.

Why a conversation that started out that way should end in an apple-stealing story-telling contest instead of a series of fish stories I can not say. I can but tell what happened. I was barred from the contest because I refused to plead guilty to stealing apples. Chauffeur Gardner was unable to qualify.

Officer Stinger's story was told first.

"My boyhood was spent in Ohio. Our neighbor who had an apple orchard was fond of me. I was his favorite of all the boys in our family. He used to give me shinpasters, greenback dimes and quarters."

"My brothers suggested to me that I climb one of his apple trees and steal some apples. I didn't want to go because he had often said, 'This is a good boy. He never takes my fruit.' 'They dared and teased until I agreed to go. I climbed up the tree and was just ready to pick the fruit when I saw him walking about his home in the valley. I feared that he would see me so I slid down the trunk of the tree to the base."

"The afternoon sun was shining there. I hid my face in my hands and went to sleep. It was 4 o'clock then. I didn't wake up again until 9 o'clock that night. It was dark and I was afraid. 'The distance to our house was four miles. There was nothing for me to do but walk down the hill to the old farmer's house and tell him my story."

"That wasn't easy, especially when I remembered how kind he had been to me. 'I know,' he said, when I was through, 'those other boys put you up to it. Never mind, I'll take you up the hill.'"

"But I'm afraid," said I, 'of the bear.' A bear had been seen in the neighborhood a short time before.

"Don't worry about that," he said, 'I'll give you my lantern. The bear can't get you when you have that.'"

"He climbed the hill with me and gave me his lantern. Just then I heard horses' hoofs. My brothers were searching the country for me."

"I was glad to be found."

With the confidence of a man who has viewed his opponent's strength, Capt. McNamee began his story.

"The home of my childhood was a Missouri farm. We had no apples ripe at the time of the year of which I speak, but our neighbor, Mr. M., had trees loaded with Swedenburgs. I went over to his farm on horseback."

"I did my errand and waited around a bit, but nobody even mentioned apples. The road home passed the orchard, I looked in and saw the ripened apples."

"I looked back at the house. Nobody was in sight. I looked the other directions, but saw no one. The apples coaxed.

"I stopped my horse, jumped to the ground, climbed over the fence and up a tree."

"I took four apples; I placed one in each of my trousers pocket and carried one in each hand. They were big fellows. As I started back to the fence I began eating one of the apples. It was good."

"I looked down the road. Mr. M.—was riding toward me on horseback. I didn't know what to do. I dropped all the apples in the ravine that went downward from the fence and hurried to my horse."

"The ravine was full of dried leaves and I could hear the roll-roll of those apples going down. I can hear that sound to this day. They may have gotten to the bottom, but I have never heard them stop."

"Mr. M.—rode past me. He said, 'Good morning,' and gave no sign that he could hear those apples rolling. His mind was probably occupied with something else."

Capt. McNamee gave the decision of the contest himself. "My story's better than yours; Stinger doesn't keep apples rolling to this day."

"Our John's wife," said John's father, "is too easy with him. She's too ready to make excuses for him."

"Well," remarked John's mother, significantly, "John can't say truthfully that they're not like mother used to make."

"Always in the Lead!"

As the Only Perfect Piano-Playing Aid.

Why the Angelus Is Different:

Because it is the only instrument in the world, with the aid of which you, yourself, can play your own piano just as your taste may dictate; the simple expression devices not only permitting you to instantly make any desired change in the tempo, but enabling you to play the melody of a composition loud, while playing the accompaniment soft, with the same perfect control as though done with the fingers of an expert.

Please Remember

The Angelus is not a Self-Player and when you use it you are not an operator. It does not run by means of springs or electricity, but it is an aid with which you, the performer, can play any known musical composition and do it artistically in that degree in which the performer is artistic.

Seeing is Believing

And we shall be delighted to have you call at our store and see the wonderful new and improved Angelus.

Monthly Payments

The new and Improved Angelus will be sold by us on our monthly payment plan and old instruments will be taken in exchange.

WITH FISTS, GIRL AVENGES INSULT

14-Year-Old Miss Says Woman Made Slighting Remark About Mother.

THEN THE FIGHT STARTED

Girl, Who Is Quite Slight, Says She Did Not Use Weapon in Blacking Eyes.

Mattie Gamache, 14 years old, appeared as a defendant in juvenile court Thursday morning before Judge Bishop, on the charge of attacking and severely beating Miss Mattie Jones, 35 years old, who keeps a bakery at 6217 South Broadway.

Miss Jones told the court that the attack by the 14-year-old girl was without provocation. Both Miss Jones' eyes were discolored and there were numerous bruises and contusions on her face. Judge Bishop asked Mattie, who is slight for her years, to take the stand and relate to him the circumstances of the trouble. She said that she left her home at 206 Blow street and went to Miss Jones' bakery to buy some rolls. Miss Jones made some slighting remark about the Gamache girl's stepmother, which the child resented. She so stated to Miss Jones, who, she said, repeated the remark and said she could prove the assertion.

"Then I reached over the counter," said the girl, "and struck her in the face. Then I went behind the counter and fought her as hard as I knew how."

"Did you strike her with a coupling pin?" Judge Bishop asked. "No, I struck her with my fists as hard as I could. I love my stepmother and I will not permit anyone to make ugly remarks about her."

Judge Bishop continued the case until Sept. 9 to obtain further evidence.

BRIDE SCARED BY MAMMA'S WARNING?

"I Will Tell Her What Married Life Is," Said the Mother, "Then Let Her Choose."

NO LICENSE ISSUED YET

So Clerk Believes That Mrs. Vechtle Caused Daughter to Change Her Mind.

Marriage License Clerk Caughlin of East St. Louis is all ready to issue a license to George Stonestreet and Caroline Vechtle, but they do not appear. He wonders if the mother's fearful warning has frightened the daughter out of her intention to marry.

"If," said the mother, "after I have told her something about married life, my daughter still wishes to marry, she may do so."

Wednesday afternoon Stonestreet asked for the license. He was alone, but Mrs. Vechtle, mother of the 18-year-old girl whom he wishes to marry, appeared within a few minutes. The couple have been engaged three years. It is said, but the mother has opposed marriage until now because of the girl's youth.

Asked by the clerk if she gave her consent, Mrs. Vechtle said she wished to talk to the girl first.

"I wish to tell her something about the life she is proposing to take up," said the mother. "I have been married, and I know. Caroline can marry Mr. Stonestreet then if she desires, but first I want to tell her."

"I won't make any difference with Caroline," Stonestreet assured her, and went to the home, 621 Brady avenue, to get the girl. The mother waited.

At 5:30 p. m., when the office was closed, she was still waiting. Thursday morning the applicants for the license did not appear, and the clerk's wonder is not strange.

Incidentally, Justice of the Peace Brady waited until late Wednesday for a bride couple to be that never came.

Post-Dispatch Newsboys No. 51

MARION MYERS, 729 VANDEVENTER AVENUE.

Here is the picture of a self-reliant, ambitious American boy, who, having read the articles about the Post-Dispatch newsboys saw possibilities that were open to him also in this line of endeavor.

Marion Myers is 12 years old. Three weeks ago he came to William Welsh, Post-Dispatch branch manager, 321 Olive street, told him he had read what other Post-Dispatch boys were doing and asked to be given a chance to make money selling the Post-Dispatch.

Welsh is a graduate from the ranks of Post-Dispatch newsboys and teaches new boys not only by telling them how, but by showing them also. Marion so successfully "caught on" as a Post-Dispatch newsboy that he made $6 profit the first week.

He is a "car-hopper," and works on the Olive cars, between Sarah street and Vandeventer avenue.

Marion also has a corner station at Vandeventer and Olive. He is interested in soliciting for regular customers in his neighborhood and fully realizes the importance of taking advantage of this means to increase his profits. Scores of new boys have joined the ranks of the Post-Dispatch newsboys recently and Marion is a good representative of these new boys.

William Welsh, the branch manager, will gladly give new boys in his district all the instruction he can so they also may make money selling the Daily Post-Dispatch.

JUDGE SLEVIN DIES SUDDENLY

Deputy Wharf Commissioner Was in Bed Only Two Days Before Death.

The funeral of John R. Slevin, Deputy Wharf Commissioner, who died Wednesday at his residence, 215 North Sarah street, from Bright's disease, will be held at Cathedral Chapel, Maryland and Newstead avenues, at 8:30 a. m. Friday.

Mr. Slevin was 63 years of age and was in bed but two days. During the greater part of his life he resided in South St. Louis, where he was known as Judge Slevin, on account of having served several terms as Justice of the Peace. In 1871 he was elected City Marshal and was afterwards re-elected to the same office. He was also jury commissioner. He was a member of the Volunteer Firemen's Historical Society. He is survived by his widow, three daughters and one son.

MUENCH QUITS CONSULSHIP.

St. Louisian May Not Return Home for Some Time.

The St. Louis friends of Hugo Muench, the retiring consul at Plauen, Saxony, who is to be succeeded by Carl Bailey Hurst of Maryland, now consul at La Guayra, Venezuela, have not yet heard from him concerning his plans for the immediate future.

Mr. Muench has been away from St. Louis for a number of years and it is thought by some that he may decide to remain abroad permanently, but nothing definite on this point is yet known. Mr. Muench was a well-known member of the local bar for years.

Missing Mr. Fakes Found.

A telegram from Joseph G. Fakes to his wife, who is staying with relatives at 2311 Russell avenue, has cleared the mystery of his strange disappearance. In his telegram, sent from Seattle, Wash., he said he had been very ill, but would write soon. Mr. Fakes believes her husband had malaria, and boarded a train while delirious.

Miss Eleanor Kent and Valois, Her Champion French Bulldog

Miss Eleanor Kent, prima donna of the Delmar Opera Company, who is singing this week for the benefit of the Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund, is the owner of the champion French bulldog of the United States—a droll looking little fellow with a long pedigree and a big medal which he is too modest to wear. His full name is Valois Ruinart, and Miss Kent imported his great-grandmother, Boulette I. His grandfather was Champion Maurice, and his grandmother Marguerite de Valois. Ruinart I was his father, and Boulette II his mother, and each generation of the family has won prizes at the Madison Square Garden show. Dog fanciers of the country are quite familiar with the prima donna's French bulldogs, especially the little Valois, whose thoroughbred look always impresses a judge at a dog show. Valois is a French dog all over, just as the famous Rover was a dead all over. He whines in French, and barks in the patois of a Parisian watchdog.

This is to be a big night at the Delmar Theater. The guests of Roberts, Johnson and Rand Shoe Co. will be there en masse, almost the entire 75-cent section having been reserved for them. The attendance at the garden all week has been excellent, and the audiences have thoroughly enjoyed "King Dodo." Invitations to attend the performance tonight have been extended to all the visiting merchants by the Roberts, Johnson and Rand Shoe Co. and many have accepted. It is not necessary to be a customer of the firm to accept its hospitality. The company will do its best to please the visitors and the visitors will add to the joy of the evening. There is no question of the entertainment tonight. It will be a great night for the public. The example of the shoe men should be followed by others. There is no better way to entertain guests than by taking them to Delmar, and hospitality of this kind will help the sick babies.

POLICE WORRIED ABOUT PRISONER

Adams Presents Documentary Evidence to Show He Is Not Man Wanted.

The St. Louis police are puzzled by the case of Robert T. Adams, now held at Four Courts awaiting further communications from Constable Carrouthers of Newport, Ark., a telegram from whom tells Adams being taken into custody Wednesday night at his home.

The telegram, addressed to Chief of Detectives Desmond, was as follows: "Arrest Sol. Alcorn, alias Adams, rooming at 391 Morgan street, wanted in this city for embezzlement of $300 and for whom a reward of $50 has been offered. Description: About 40 years old, small in stature, weighing about 135 pounds; very talkative."

It is said that he has never been in Newport, Ark., and has never gone by the name of Alcorn. He is an electrician, he says, now in the employ of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., and during the World's Fair was employed on the electrical plant of the Fair, under Chief Electrician H. R. Rustin, to whom he refers, as also to Laurence Harrison, Jr., son of the late Chief of Police. Adams shows his World's Fair photographic pass in support of his story, and also took Detective Joyce to his room and insisted upon the latter examining all his personal effects and correspondence, all bearing out his own story.

He says that he came here from Chicago about four weeks ago, and that prior to that time he worked in Kansas City, Mo., referring to the Chief of Police of that city, who he says, is a personal friend. His story impressed the St. Louis police as being straight-forward and borne out by the evidence which he offers.

POLICE DRAG AWAY SOCIALIST ORATORS

Open-Air Meeting Broken Up—Leaders Say Permit Was Repeatedly Sought.

The police broke up an open meeting of Socialists at Twelfth and Olive streets Wednesday night and arrested three of the leaders on the charge of obstructing the street.

Fred G. Strickland of Terre Haute, Ind., had begun an address when Policeman Collins of the Central District asked to be shown the permit for the meeting. Strickland said he had none, and ceased speaking.

William M. Brandt of 1706 South Twelfth street, chairman of the meeting, started to make a few remarks to the crowd and was arrested, together with L. E. Hildebrand of 129 Elliott avenue and Otto Vierling of 2162 Geyer avenue. All gave bond of $300 at Four Courts.

Strickland was not arrested, and left for Kansas City, where he has an engagement to speak.

The Socialists explained that they had applied for a permit several times, and had been put off to await the return of Mayor Wells from his vacation. After his return, they said, he had been too ill to attend to his duties, and they had failed to get the permit. They were very indignant at the action of the police.

TWO CLUBS RUN ON ONE CHARTER

Excise Commissioner Asks That "Crown" Headquarters Be Closed.

Excise Commissioner Mulvihill has recommended to the Police Department that the Crown Club at 1629 Hodiament avenue be closed. He says two clubs of that name are operating under one charter. The other is at 410 Market street.

In response to a citation John Hanson, president of the club in De Hodiament, declared that the charter had been transferred to him. After the original charter was lost he procured a certified copy, he said, from Secretary of State Cook.

Later the Crown Club on Market street procured another certified copy from Secretary of State Swanger.

The loss will approximate $275,000, with $60,000 insurance.

"LAST DRINK, NOW FOR LAST SLEEP"

His Last Dime Spent, Man Protests Against Interference With Suicidal Plan.

"I've taken my last drink and my last smoke, spent my last time and now I'll take my last sleep," said J. G. Gerding, aged 65, of 107 North Ninth street, after swallowing some whisky in the saloon at 801 Chestnut street Thursday.

"Now it's an ounce of lead for me." Then he staggered out, and Ed Frohman, the bartender, told Policeman Frohman of Gerding's words. The policeman found Gerding a short distance away, summoned an ambulance and sent him to the City Hospital, Gerding protesting that this interference meant only a postponement of the self-destruction upon which he said he was determined.

Age, poverty and the loss of friends were the reasons he gave for wanting to end life.

STOPPED PRAYER TO MARRY COUPLE

Parent Was in Pursuit and They Had No Time to Wait on Church Service.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CARMEL, Ill., Aug. 31.—Pursued by an irate father, intent on preventing marriage, Miss Hallie Ward and William Tarsel were uniquely wed this morning. They passed a country church where a quietly meeting was being held, and seeing they would be overtaken and plans thwarted if they tried to go farther, turned horse and buggy back to the chapel.

Hastily summoning the pastor, who was praying, they were wed in the busy in the nick of time.

Excitement reigned in the congregation and Rev. W. J. Smith, pastor, who performed the ceremony, sang the doxology and adjourned services.

The pursuing parent joined the congregation in showering congratulations when it was evident his plans were thwarted.

FEVER PUTS BAN ON LOUISIANA OYSTER

Season Will Not Be Opened Tomorrow and Thousands Will Be Kept Idle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—Unless the Marine Hospital modifies its ruling there will be an oyster famine in New Orleans, beginning Sept. 1, when the annual oyster season opens in Louisiana. President Breaux of the State Oyster Commission pleaded with Surgeon White to allow luggers to come from the oyster fields to this city, but permission was withheld pending an investigation.

The majority of the yellow fever victims are Italians and Austrians, who control the oyster trade in this State. It is feared that if free communication is allowed between New Orleans and non-infected towns the disease will be carried by the foreigners, and several towns will not permit them to land.

The opening of the oyster season is an important enterprise. About 10,000 barrels of oysters are consumed here daily, 80 per cent of which are brought in luggers manned by Italians and Austrians. There are practically no oysters on hand now.

Most Victims Italians.
The official records show that out of the 1832 cases, 938 were Italians, who furnished 172 deaths out of 267 deaths. Fifty-one per cent of the cases were Italians, while 64 per cent of the fatalities were among the same nationality. French, German and American persons furnished the greater number of the cases and deaths, the French predominating.

The fever is playing havoc among the attending physicians, three of whom are afflicted. Dr. Merieux, health officer of St. Bernard parish, was stricken while on duty and had to be carried away against his will.

Bananas are to be shipped through New Orleans from Port Chalmette, five miles below here in screened refrigerated cars. The local authorities refused to permit the fruit ships to land in New Orleans, but hurried arrangements were made to handle the bananas at the Chalmette docks. None of the fruit will be sent to this city to guard against infected mosquitoes spreading the disease.

Mrs. Patton Declares Husband Scolded Her Regarding Expenditure of Her Money.

Mrs. Minnie L. Patton, who filed suit for divorce Thursday against Charles E. Patton of 6014 Horton place, says that she had to work to support herself all the time that she was his wife, and that he nagged her because she got home from her work later than he got home from his.

They were married in July, 1903, and lived together two years. She says that, although she bought her own clothes and gave him about $300, he complained about her extravagant expenditure of her own money.
